

AFFIDAVIT OF ELTON POTTS

I, Elton Potts, having been duly sworn and cautioned do hereby state as follows:

1. I am currently the Senior Vice President of Asset Management for CHEP. I have first-hand knowledge of the matters addressed herein and am competent to testify as to these matters.

2. Prior to assuming my current duties and responsibilities with Asset Management, I worked in the finance area of CHEP. Therefore, in addition to my knowledge and experience with CHEP's asset management functions and customer information, I am also familiar with many of CHEP's practices and procedures in the finance and accounting areas.

3. CHEP produced over ten thousand documents to Buckeye in connection with the Buckeye Diamond Logistics, Inc. vs. CHEP USA lawsuit. As addressed below in greater detail, many of these documents contain highly sensitive information that CHEP would never release to the public and certainly not to a competitor such as Buckeye (particularly in the detailed format that the information was prepared and produced in response to Buckeye's discovery requests). CHEP did so only because we had the security afforded by the Protective Order that allowed CHEP to produce certain information subject to a high degree of protection such as limiting that information to "Outside Attorney's Eyes Only." In addition, much of the information produced to Buckeye is information that would place CHEP at a competitive disadvantage and create an unfair advantage for our competitors who gain access to this information. Given the fact that Buckeye and CHEP are actual competitors for business with a number of customers, CHEP certainly would not share its confidential and proprietary business information with Buckeye.

4. Buckeye has placed within the documents that they filed as part of their Summary Judgment filings a contract with CHEP's single largest customer. (It is part of Plaintiff's Exhibits in Support of its Motion for Summary Judgment, Attachment Y—Docket # 30). This contract is a current, on-going contract. The public disclosure of this contract, which both CHEP and the customer regard as highly confidential business information, places CHEP's relationship with that customer in jeopardy. In addition, the specifics in this contract such as pricing, volume, duration, the termination provisions would be of tremendous commercial value to CHEP's competitors---and would be the very type of information that a competitor seeking to compete for this customer's business would want. CHEP would be placed at a serious disadvantage if this information was made public. The contract also contains a confidentiality stipulation at Para. 27, which imposes on CHEP an obligation to this customer to keep this type of information confidential. In addition to the disclosure of the contract described in this paragraph, any references made to similar specifics concerning the relationship with this customer in the course of its Summary Judgment Memoranda to the Court would be equally problematic. At no time have I been made aware of any occasion where CHEP pallets from this particular customer came into Buckeye's possession. Based on the geographic scope of Buckeye's business area, as I understand it and the operations at this particular customer, I do not believe that it is likely that any of CHEP's pallets the came into Buckeye's possession through this particular customer.

5. CHEP has engaged in various steps to improve its business methods, including but not limited to improving the prompt recovery of its assets and its relationship with the recycler community. These steps include utilizing outside consultants and engaging in internal critical self-examination. As a result of these processes, a consultant produced some reports and some internal brain-storming was reduced to writing (See, for example, Exhibit U, X to Buckeye's Summary Judgment Exhibits—Docket 30, and Exhibit B to Buckeye's Memorandum in Opposition—Docket #40). Besides putting these documents before the Court, I am informed that Buckeye has quoted liberally from these documents throughout their various Summary Judgment filings. With respect to the consultant's reports, this is information that CHEP regards as highly confidential. As the reports note on each and every page, they were prepared by the consultant "solely for the use of our client it is not to be relied on by any 3rd party without [the consultant's] prior written consent." While some of the factual underpinnings of the consultant's report have been seriously called into question by various CHEP personnel, the fact remains that CHEP safeguards this information from disclosure and limits its dissemination within the company to those with a business reason to know the information. Both the consultant's information and that which came out of the internal brain-storming sessions, would be the type of information that would be of benefit to CHEP's competitors because it purports to show the company's weaknesses and plans for future strategies. Any company would benefit by seeing this type of information about a competitor because it would allow for the competitive exploitation of any weaknesses disclosed by the reports or notes and would allow the competitor to see the plans and strategies that the company will likely pursue in the future.

6. In addition to what is addressed in Paragraphs 4-5 above, the following additional information is that which CHEP does not reveal to anyone outside of CHEP and in which CHEP takes steps to maintain in a confidential matter (such as limiting disclosure of the information within the company to those who have a business reason to know it and adopting facility security measures to assure that persons who do not have a business reason to know the information are restricted from access to it):

- a. CHEP USA's annual rental revenue (from the Norder Affidavit).
- b. Customer agreements and internally generated customer reporting information which disclose CHEP's customer's name as well as the terms of the business relationship which include, but are not limited to, revenue generated by that customer, fees, financial terms, anticipated growth, projections, volumes, pricing adjustment, and contact people at the customer. Also, some of these documents contain express confidentiality stipulations between CHEP and its customer. While CHEP does disclose the existence of certain customer relationships (such as Proctor & Gamble, Wal*Mart, Sam's Club, and Tropicana), CHEP does not disclose any specific information about these relationships related to revenue generated by that customer, fees, financial terms, anticipated growth, projections, volumes, pricing adjustment, and contact people at the customer.

- c. Exhibit 7 of my affidavit filed as part of CHEP's Summary Judgment Motion, discloses the name, address and contact person of a member of the recycling industry that is cooperative with CHEP with respect to returning pallets. This information would be useful to others in the recycling industry who (as is exemplified by The Pallet Board) are interested in disrupting CHEP's relationship with cooperative recyclers. Moreover, this is a neutral third-party who should be protected from annoyance or harassment, which may occur if its name is revealed publicly.
- d. "FIFO inventory value" for pallets and internal accounting treatments.
- e. Information concerning the relationship between fees charged to CHEP customers and accounting treatment of the pallets.
- f. CHEP's actual acquisition costs for certain materials.
- g. Internal accounting accruals and write-offs.
- h. Internal Financial Data ---such as profit/loss info, margins & costs.
- i. Internal reporting about the movement, location and cycling of CHEP's assets.

7. It is my belief that the public disclosure of this information has the potential of causing great harm to CHEP as well as harm to CHEP's relationships with its customers and recyclers who work with CHEP. That harm is evidenced, in part, by the vitriolic comments made about CHEP on The Pallet Board and the fact that whenever CHEP has provided Buckeye with any information, Sam McAdow Sr., posts it quickly to that website.

Elton Potts

~~Buckeye-VS-Chep-Status~~ by Sam J. McAdow 10:18 on 25th Feb

On February 19, 2004 the court delayed the Buckeye case until May 24, 2004.
On February 4, 2004, Chep filed a disclosure claiming damages for the possession of Chep pallets by Buckeye.

After the court ruled that Chep owned the blue Chep pallets, Buckeye told Chep that they could pick-up these pallets, which they did in August and September 2003. Buckeye and Chep agreed that Buckeye would receive no compensation for these pallets until the judicial determination of the outcome of Buckeye's unjust enrichment claim.

Then, Chep waits until February 4, 2004 to file its disclosure regarding "alleged" damages to these pallets. Even though this disclosure was filed past the court set deadline, the court allowed the filing and stated that Buckeye would need more time to investigate the "alleged" damages. Hence, , the postponement

Chep's damaged claims as filed are as follows:
15,981 pallets washed @ $1.75/ea. = $ 27966.00
6,996 parts replaced @ $0.673/ea.= $ 4708.00
2301 pallets repaired @ $ 1.07/ea= $ 2461.00
259 pallets replaced @ $ 18.54/ea. = $ 4801.00
Total $ 39936.00

PLUS
Depreciation in value
Total pallets Dep. Monthly Average Mo. Held Total
27,395 $0.1233 10.1 $33,995.58

PLUS
Cost of Capitol of Replacement Pallets Replacement Cost Cost of Capitol @ 9%
27395 $ 538,275.60 $ 48,444.78

PLUS
Service fees paid to Buckeye by Chep customers for Chep pallets returned to those customers. Total $ 37,482.00
Total Claimed Damages $ 159,857.00

Buckeye has begun it's investigation.
Anybody have any comments or suggestions ?

I'm sure that this and/or any other CHEP facility that is washing pallets is breaking the law by not complying with Waste Water Permitting and Regulations. Someone with the East Tennessee EPA should look into this facility for violations of with waste water discharge and reporting. Whats new!

Re: Chep vs Chep by Sam McAdow 09:08 on 17th Feb 2003

Know the facts before you decide:

The trial date in the lawsuit contesting CHEP USA's ownership rights and trade practices is just months away. On May 19, 2003, trial will begin in a case that contests CHEP's ownership rights to the millions of pallets it has allowed to be shipped outside of its supposed "close-looped system." In this case, the United States District Court will decide whether CHEP can have any claim to ownership of pallets that industry reports indicate it has intentionally placed into general circulation. The Court will also decide whether the representations as to ownership and as to recycler's responsibilities to return pallets that CHEP makes on a routine basis are a deceptive trade practice. Finally, the Court will decide – regardless of ownership – whether recyclers have a legal right to compensation for the return of CHEP pallets – compensation that cannot be conditioned on agreeing to CHEP's ownership, to disclosure of customer lists, or to litigate disputes in CHEP's hometown.

Before this lawsuit was filed, CHEP refused to pay recyclers a dime for returned pallets. Now they agree that recyclers are due compensation, but insist it must be on their terms, and for not much more than a dime.

As CHEP faces the rapidly approaching trial date, it may offer more. It may try to make deals before the Court rules. Each of you must decide for yourselves what is fair compensation for your work. Each of you must decide for yourselves whether now is the time to make a deal – or after a jury has had a chance to view CHEP's conduct.

I don't let anyone take from me what I have earned and built, certainly not the foreign companies. I will let the Court make its decisions before I decide what is fair to my business.

All of us recognize that we are part of something special. We recognize that we have come a long way since the filing of the lawsuit. I encourage you to absorb this time, seize it, embrace it, and take it the direction you want it to go.

P.S See you at Marco.

"You shall know the truth and the truth shall set you free."
 For those of you that are intersted in the "truth": Buckeye Diamond Logistics Inc. fka Buckeye Recyclers Inc., Plaintiff v CHEP USA, a general partnership, Defendant. Case #C3-01-440 in the United States District Court for the Southern District of Ohio, Western Division at Dayton.
 Check it out yourself! There have been no decisions on the issues of the case. The case is awaiting the assignment of a trial date. We can lose, but we will have our day in court. Persistence pays.
 I am not the issue, CHEP is. My business culture does not affect the industry, CHEP's profoundly does.
 You see, it is in my best business interest to "help" CHEP develop a better US business culture. Keep in mind, CHEP cannot exist without our industry. The industry is CHEP's lifeblood. If everybody in the pallet industry would refuse to do any business with CHEP for 30 days, they would be done in the US. CHEP is a marketing company with money -- no manufacturing facilities or employees. Ponder that one idea for awhile. Or, the industry not purchase any Wal-Mart white cores for 30 days?
 By the way, this lawsuit is NOT being pursued alone. I have had some very significant financial and philosophical support. The industry owes them a profound thank-you. Someday, with their consent, they will be known.
 For those of you who are publicly supporting the determination of the issues, a heartfelt thanks. Keep it up! A public and judicial discussion of the issues are good.
 Bramble closed Thursday on Sydney market $4.51 Australian dollars or $2.95 US dollars. Somebody thinks CHEP has problems.

CHEP decision by Sam J. McAdow 22:31 on 15th Aug 2003

I was advised Friday afternoon that the judge did make rulings on most of the issues in the Buckeye v CHEP case. While I will decipher the 47 page opinion this weekend, it is obvious that CHEP was victorious on most of the issues, especially the ownership issue. The matter of compensation is still an undecided issue.

The Court's decision is public and its analysis discloses some very interesting facts that were previously under the protective order.

I will make a more detailed post the first of the week.

Court Documents by Sam McAdow 14:44 on 22nd Sep 2003

Your judgement is no better than your knowledge. It is imperative that you read the site attached where Chep argues to the court that a pallet recycler cannot return Chep pallets to the customer they came from or to the Chep depot for the customer's credit. They further argue that it would be illegal for a recycler to do a pallet management program off the site of the customer if it included sorting in part Chep pallets.

No drugs here friend. Chep's little lies have caught up with them.

Chep has tried to hide the truth, but it comes to light.
 Chep has tried to surpress the truth, but it comes to the surface.
 Chep has tried to distort the truth, but it comes into focus.
 Chep has tried to run from the truth, but it has caught them.

~~When all is revealed~~ the truth will shock this industry and will pierce Chep to its very CORE

Question for Sam by Mr. Clean 13:37 on 15th Mar

Post new message

Reply

is the $1.75 per pallet washing charge that Chep is trying to charge back to you going to get us all in trouble?

Should we all begin washing all blue pallets as a preventative measure?

If you add a $1.75 for every pallet, that brings Chep's offering price up close to the respectable range.
